The Significance and History of Juneteenth

Juneteenth is recognized as both a Federal and State of Illinois Holiday
The Emancipation Proclamation was enacted on January 1st, 1863 and declared
"all persons held as slaves" within the rebellious states "are, and henceforward shall be free." It was not until after the surrender of the Confederacy on June 19th, 1865 that enslaved individuals were made aware of the proclamation and has since been celebrated as the date of true freedom and independence.
